Re: Support for the Warrior Right to Repair Act – FY26 NDAA (Sections 863 House / 836 Senate)

Dear Chairmen and Ranking Members of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees:

We, the undersigned specialty equipment manufacturers, suppliers, aftermarket businesses, and small business owners strongly support Congress's current defense right to repair effort, which is represented in Section 863 of the House FY26 National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) and Section 836 of the Senate FY26 NDAA.

As American businesses built around precision manufacturing, technical innovation, and high-performance engineering, we are uniquely positioned to help the Department of Defense meet its sustainment and readiness goals. But outdated restrictions are holding us – and the Department of Defense – back right now.

The Department of Defense spends tens of billions annually on sustainment, yet persistent repair bottlenecks remain. Many of those challenges stem from a lack of repair access to the tools, data, and parts needed to service the equipment our military already owns. As a result, aircraft, vehicles, and systems often sit idle waiting for proprietary components or single-source repair solutions. This delay isn't just inefficient—it's costly to taxpayers and potentially dangerous to servicemembers.

The current defense right to repair effort reflected in the House and Senate versions of the FY26 NDAA, would change that by allowing the Department of Defense to fairly access the information and materials it needs to maintain mission-critical systems—and to contract with a broader range of businesses to do the work.

Many businesses in our industry—specialty equipment manufacturers, aftermarket innovators, and precision part suppliers—have the capability, capacity, and technical expertise to:

- Rapidly reverse-engineer and produce specialty components and hard-to-source parts,
- Delivering cost-effective and customized solutions on accelerated timelines,
- Provide flexible, decentralized repair capacity to reduce downtime and increase resilience, and
- Expand the defense sustainment ecosystem through supplier diversity and small business participation.

For decades, our members have driven competition, innovation, and technical excellence in the automotive and specialty manufacturing sectors. With the Warrior Right to Repair Act, we can help do the same for national defense.

This legislation will:

- Expand competition for sustainment contracts to include more U.S. businesses,
- Drive innovation in repair processes and specialty component production,
- Improve readiness by reducing sole-source delays and equipment downtime,
- Lower costs for taxpayers through competitive sourcing and open access to repairs, and
- Strengthening the defense industrial base by bringing in capable, agile suppliers.

This is about ensuring the government can maintain and repair what it already owns. It's about making sure the Department of Defense has access to every capable partner in the country to keep our military mission-ready.

We urge Congress to pass language supporting the Department of Defense's right to repair by including language in the final FY26 NDAA that represents Section 863 in the House and Section 836 in the Senate. America's defense deserves the best sustainment partners possible—and we stand ready to meet that challenge.

Sincerely,
